

The Job Search Guide: The New Virtual Reality

Version 5.0
Last updated 5/26/20

We hope all Bryant students and alumni find this updated guide helpful for kickstarting the virtual internship and/or job search, or expanding your current strategies. This guide was written because of the need to shift all services to virtual formats. We know there is a lot contained in this guide – take your time with each section. Careful in-depth research is what the internship/job search requires.

Alumni: All Amica Center for Career Education services are available to you, up to five years past your Bryant graduation date. Instructions on how to access services are below.

Faculty and parents who are supporting students and alumni may find this useful for guiding students and alumni to appropriate career resources.

5.0 Updates:

- Reordered content based on student feedback – thank you! The List of Links now starts on Page 3.
- Greatly expanded Communication++ and Arts, Fashion and Entertainment sections.

Please share feedback and new links (careers@bryant.edu) as we update this document regularly.

COVID-19 Sites – Who’s hiring, who’s freezing....

These sites claim to have current information about who is hiring and for what. Some of these sites report out on cancelled internships or jobs. Most are self-report so there may be a range of error because of the crowdsourcing. We are providing this info for your review. Proceed with caution.

Companies reportedly still hiring

Candor – LIVE info – Job hiring or freezes – a great site

GitHub – Tech Hiring

Pangian – list may be pulling from above sources – but a great site

Virtual Career Fairs

Virtual career fairs allow you to connect with recruiters from anywhere! The two services below are well established.

- ✓ CareerEco – This site hosts many types of virtual fairs (employment & grad school).
- ✓ 100% worth checking out.

Professional Associations

Many/most professional associations have job and internship boards on their websites. Below, in the List of Links, many associations are listed – but this link has 35,000+ professional associations!

Directory of Associations

Diversity and Inclusion Programs and Links

Corporate Affinity and Employee Resource Groups (ERGs) often have separate recruiting channels. These are just some options – there are many, many more. Use search terms such as “diversity and inclusion recruiting” or “affinity recruiting” along with the org name to find and research other organizations.

- Diversity & Inclusion Pledge – Lists organizations who have signed the pledge
- Human Rights Campaign – lists corporations using the HRC Equity Index

- Bank of America
 - JP Morgan
 - Liberty Mutual
 - Goldman Sachs
 - Target
 - Fidelity

Bryant Career Connection (BCC)

BCC is up and running and fully available for searching for full-time and internship positions. Our employer partners are actively using BCC to post opportunities and we are adding positions daily.

Best practice – use filters:

Use the filter tools in BCC to conduct a strategic job search. For seniors looking at full-time jobs, use the following position type filters:

- Full-Time: Entry Level (Upcoming Grad);
- Full-time: Recent Grad (Immediate need); and
- Curated Job – Full Time.

Seniors can (and do) apply for post-degree internships. For students (including seniors) searching for internships, filter for (use all the apply):

- Internship – Credit Optional;
- Internship – Credit Required;
- Internship – Non-credit;
- Co-op; and
- Part time.

Use the Job Agent function in BCC!

In addition, employers have coded positions by “fields of interest” – a method that transcends strict industry and work function definitions. Example: You want to work as an accountant in a humanitarian setting (e.g., United Way). Fields of Interest could be used to filter by select Fields of Interest – all defined within BCC.

To filter by Fields of Interest:

1. Click on “Jobs & Internships” on the left-hand navigation bar.
2. Select “Search” (it will take you to a new window)
3. Click on “More Filters” along the top of the screen
4. Scroll down to the “Fields of Interest” drop down menu and check desired fields.
5. Click “Apply”

Internship and Job Search Websites

Below is the long List of Links - websites that may be helpful for you as you search for your internship or job. Remote (a.k.a., virtual, work from home, etc.) internship, gig, and work websites are highlighted as [remote]. IMPORTANT: It is up to you to review, vet and apply to the opportunities and individual/organizations using these posting sites (please see p.19 for detailed info on this). We have sorted them using broad categories (arranged alphabetically – see list below) so you can more easily navigate the List of Links. Sometimes a site is hard to categorize so we did our best.

General tips:

- Mouse over each link and ctrl+click on them to go straight to the website
- Review the entire list! There are hidden gems!

Agencies, Chambers of Commerce, and Immediate Hiring

Temporary Hiring Agencies

Do not discount temporary hiring agencies. The professional role you land through a temporary agency could very well lead to full-time career employment. These positions are often called "Temp-to-Hire" positions.

Caveat: Never pay to be placed. Quality agencies do not ask recently graduated (or soon-to-graduate) candidates to pay for employment access.

Additional Job Search Strategies

Portfolium

Highlight your work and skills on Portfolium – another valuable tool for employers to see your skill set. Then share your Portfolium page with prospective employers and recruiters.

LinkedIn Groups

Consider joining LinkedIn Groups affiliated with your interests, industry or sector.

Best Practice:

In the search bar of LinkedIn in type in your keyword (ie: Finance Professionals, Women in Tech, Manufacturing Professionals) and LinkedIn will first generate the people who match that search term, but further down the page, you will find Groups affiliated with that search term. Go ahead and check out some of the groups and look for groups that feel really aligned with your goals. When you find one, request to join that group. In a matter of time you will be approved and begin to see content on your feed that relates to you interests with like-minded people. You may even find possible networking opportunities and job postings within these hidden pockets of professionals.

LinkedIn Alumni Career Paths

Use the Bryant University LinkedIn page to connect with over 38,000 current students and alumni to connect. You can learn about their paths to success by viewing their profiles or ask to video chat to learn more and ask for advice.

Best Practice:

In the search bar of LinkedIn, type in Bryant University to find the School page. Click on Alumni and you will have a visual of the 39K alumni of Bryant who are registered on LinkedIn. You can see where they live, where they work, what they studied and what they do. As you scroll down, LinkedIn will show you Bryant alumni and you can browse alumni profiles. In the search bar within the Alumni tool, you can type in your keywords (ie: Marketing, Biology, New Haven, CT) and the subset of Bryant Alumni will be featured. Look over these alumni to see where they work, what their first job was out of college, learn about new companies this way or determine the path that you want to take based on what other Bryant grads have done.

AlumniFire

Another tool for finding Bryant alumni who are available for advice and in some cases, job leads.

Personal Networking – An Untapped Resource

It is okay to tell people you are looking for a position! College seniors often find jobs by engaging their personal networks. Consider connections closer to home. Extended family, friends, neighbors, past supervisors, coaches and teachers may have ideas for you about where to apply or who to contact.

- Family connections
- Connections through family friends
- Bryant faculty & staff connections
- Parents of your roommates or your parent’s friends
- Consider connections through natural groups/communities: Church, Hiking Clubs, ELKS, Lions Club, VFW, high school (teachers, coaches, guidance counselors, etc.), reading/book clubs, hobby groups

Set up calls or send emails to reintroduce yourself. Express your interests and share about your excellent education and personal skills.

Best Practice:

Emails that include details about your interests and qualifications with a résumé attached creates a convenient package your contacts can forward on your behalf.

Job Postings & Virtual Recruitment

First and foremost, an internship or job search is very much like a job. It takes time and effort, discipline and diplomacy. Set aside real blocks of time to do your search. Keep a log or notes of your work. Instead of expecting someone will deliver the opportunities to you, it is up to you to find and engage with the opportunities. Consider yourself a gumshoe detective and it is your job to find and chase down each and every lead.

IMPORTANT NOTE:

Positions found on the resources listed above are not vetted or maintained by the Amica Center for Career Education staff. Students and alumni are advised to thoroughly review and vet resources and positions, before application. Use your better judgement and only engage with and apply to opportunities you feel are legitimate. Apply the rule of thumb: “If it seems too good to be true, then it probably is too good to be true.” If you have a question, please reach out to the Amica Center: careers@bryant.edu

Another hint: think out of the box. As we say in the office, “Your majors do not necessarily define your specific career paths.” We have listed many different strategies – including remote work, temp agencies, traditional and non-traditional job boards, and networking.

Tips for Using Job Boards and Other Resources

- Use Job Agents! Job agents are pre-set search filters you set up in a job board to automatically capture postings that fit your criteria, 24/7 – and you are then notified about them by email! Job agents reduce the time it takes to search multiple job boards. Caution: Make the parameters too narrow and you'll get few results; make the parameters too broad and you'll be flooded. Each job board has specific suggestions on how to best use their job agent function; read up on them!
- Save that job description! Employers eventually take down the job description from job boards. The job description contains valuable information to help you prepare for an interview, such as what the role and tasks, and the skills required to be successful. Copy/paste each description into a Word document so you can reference it during your preparation.
- Don't scrap previous versions of your résumés and cover letters! As you tailor your documents to apply for specific positions, keep a file of previous iterations so you don't lose material that you may be able to use for another position.
 - INSIDER TIP: when you save your résumé, save it as a new version, using in the file name your name, the date submitted, along with the organization to which you are applying. This will help you immensely as you make multiple applications; it will keep things straight.
Example:

Joe Smith 3-31-20 PwC

- Keep notes and save email exchanges, so you can reference past interactions and remember details.
- If possible, save the completed application external to the posting – this way, when you complete the application, you have a record.
- Never exaggerate accomplishments or bend the truth on an application. If discovered, you very well might not proceed in the application process.
- Remember: Many employers are also looking for attitude, desire to learn and grow, and team/company fit.

Interviews are now virtual

Interviews are now being conducted virtually. Interview schedules typically are built around students/alumni schedules. In addition to the telephone, interviews can take place on several online platforms: Yello, SKYPE/SKYPE for business, Zoom, and Google Hangout. The employer determines the platform.

Students and alumni are expected to dress professionally and be prepared, including having appropriate questions for the interviewer and have knowledge of the company with whom they are interviewing.

Best practices for virtual interviews (based on recruiter feedback):

- Dress and present yourself professionally, as if you were at an in-person interview;
- Prepare for the interview – do the research, develop questions, practice questions!
- Have your résumé uploaded into your BCC account; recruiters expect it;
- Be sure to place your video device so your eyes are at camera level;
- Be aware of your background and lighting (no distractions, make it neutral or professional);
- Don't have family, friends, pets, noise, etc., disturb your interview;
- No need to raise your voice; if the recruiter can't hear you, they will let you know;
- TEST your set up (audio, video, lighting, background) with a friend or family member, or with an Amica Center staff member; and
- IMPORTANT – Please ask for the recruiter's contact information before your phone or video interview ends. This is so you can send a follow up email/letter! (When you interview in the Amica Center, we have been able to provide that for you. We will not have the follow up information that you may need.)

Digging Deep

One way to dig deep, instead of looking for specific jobs via a keyword surface search, is to look broadly and strategically narrow your search. This approach uses an informed process of elimination – and it is useful when you aren't sure exactly where or with whom you want to work. Try WCIDWTM? – really, that's the name! This tool helps you narrow your search using your major – then you research places and work sectors where your major has been employed. WCIDWTM? requires you to do the internet research, using leads from the resource. Roll up your sleeves!

Diversify your search! Just like a well-designed portfolio, when a position search process is diversified, it is more robust, it covers a broader range of possibilities, and is nimble. Hence the many suggestions below.

Use CareerShift! You will be amazed by what you can learn from this research tool.

LinkedIn.com

Search for jobs and internships on LinkedIn. The Amica Center uses LinkedIn extensively and we feel it is an excellent first option after BCC for research, discovery and even applications. If you started a LinkedIn profile for a class assignment, finish it now! When applying on LinkedIn, be assured that recruiters are receiving your application.

Best practice:

Take these steps to further brand yourself on LinkedIn. Recruiters use LinkedIn!

- Add keywords into your profile that reflect what you find in jobs you apply for.
- Add a formal photo of you (and only you) – selfies, while fun, are not considered formal.
- Complete as many of the sections of profile that you can. Edit and customize your LinkedIn URL and use it on your résumé.
- Follow companies of interest so you can engage in their posts and discussions.
- Connect with people in human resources or talent acquisition who are located in the company and city you applied to work in; if they accept you, send a message to introduce yourself.
- Need more assistance with your profile?
 - Join a virtual workshop. Dates and links listed in BCC > Events > Workshops
 - Have your LinkedIn profile reviewed by our Career Coaches. Seniors and alumni may Click here to let us know you are interested and we'll send brief, custom suggestions to you within one week.
